TUESDAY - FEAST OF POPE SAINT JOHN XXIII

When on 20th October 1958 the cardinals, elected Angelo Roncalli as Pope, many regarded him, because of his age and ambiguous reputation, as a transitional pope, little realising that the Pontificate of this man of seventy-six years of age would mark a turning point in history and initiate a new age for the Church. He took the name of John in honour of Saint John the Baptist and the beloved disciple, Saint John, the Apostle, but also because it was the name of a long line of Popes whose Pontificates had been short.

Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, the third of thirteen children, was born on 25th November 1881 at Sotto il Monte in the Diocese of Bergamo, near Milan, in northern Italy. His family were peasant farmers. At the age of twelve he entered the seminary at Bergamo and began the practice of making spiritual notes, which he continued in one form or another, until his death, and which have been gathered together in a semi-autobiography, Journal of a Soul [which is well worth reading. [F.McG]

A scholarship enabled him to go on to Rome to study at the Collegio Romanum, where he studied under Umberto Benigni, the famous Church historian.

He interrupted his studies to serve in the Italian Army but returned to the seminary, completed his work for a doctorate in Theology, and was ordained in 1904. Continuing his studies in Canon Law, he was appointed secretary to the new bishop of Bergamo, Giacomo Radini-Tedeschi. Angelo served this social-minded prelate for nine years, acquiring first-hand experience and a broad understanding of the problems of working-class people. He also taught Apologetics [the defence of the Faith], Church History, and Patrology [the Church Fathers who lived until the Eight century].

With the entry of Italy into World War I in 1915, he was recalled to military service as a chaplain. On leaving the army in 1918, he was appointed Spiritual Director of the seminary but found time to open a hostel for students in Bergamo. It was at this time also that he began the research for a multi-volume work on the episcopal visitation of Bergamo by Saint Charles Borromeo, the last volume of which was published after his elevation as Pope.

In 1921 he was called to Rome to reorganize the Society for the Propagation of the Faith [for the advancement of the Faith in Mission lands]. Nominated titular

Archbishop of Areopolis and Apostolic Visitor to Bulgaria (1925), he immediately concerned himself with the problems of the Eastern Churches.

Transferred in 1934 to Turkey and Greece as Apostolic Delegate, he set up an office in Istanbul for finding prisoners of war. In 1944 he was appointed Papal Nuncio to Paris to assist in the Church's post-war efforts in France and became the first Permanent Observer of the Holy See at UNESCO, addressing its sixth and seventh General Assemblies in 1951 and 1952.

In 1953 he became Cardinal-Patriarch of Venice and expected to spend his last years there in pastoral work. He was correcting proofs of the synodal Acts of his first diocesan Synod (1958) when he was called to Rome to participate in the conclave that would elect him Pope.

In his first public address Pope John expressed his concern for reunion with separated Christians and for world peace. He asserted "vigorously and sincerely" that it was his intention to be a pastoral Pope, since all other human gifts and accomplishments of learning, practical experience, diplomatic finesse, can broaden and enrich pastoral work but they cannot replace it."

One of his first acts was to annul the regulation of Pope Sixtus IV limiting the membership of the College of Cardinals to seventy; within the next four years he enlarged it to eighty-seven with the largest international representation in history. Less than three months after his election he announced that he would hold a diocesan synod for Rome, convoke an Ecumenical Council for the universal Church, known as the Second Vatican Council, and revise the Code of Canon Law. The synod, the first in the history of Rome, was held in 1960; the Second Vatican Council was convoked in 1962; and the Pontifical Commission for the Revision of the Code was appointed in 1963.

The faithful saw in him a reflection of the goodness of God and called him "il Papa Buono", the "the Good Pope". He was a man of deep prayer who radiated the peace of one who always trusted in the Lord.

Since his death on 3rd June 1963, much has been written and spoken about the warmth and holiness of Pope John. Perhaps the testimony of the world was best expressed by a newspaper published the day after his death, shrouded in mourning with the simple caption, "A Death in the Family."

TODAY - OCTOBER DEVOTIONS IN HONOUR OF OUR LADY

It was great to see around sixty people attend the traditional October Devotions in honour of Our Lady last Sunday night.

These continue tonight with a prayerful recitation of the Rosary, the Litany of Loreto and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, along with the traditional elements: organ accompaniment and the use of incense.

Perhaps it is many years since you attended these Devotions, maybe you have never attended them. Please come and take part! Remember - Our Lady will not be outdone in repaying any efforts and sacrifices we make in her honour!

CALENDAR

Pope Saint John XXIII is honoured on Tuesday. See front cover.

Thursday is the memorial of Saint Callistus, Pope and Martyr. Born a slave, he was ordained deacon by Pope Saint Zephyrinus, whom he succeeded as pope in the year 217. As deacon he was guardian of the cemetery on the Appian Way which is still known by his name. His charitable attitude towards repentant sinners incurred the wrath of contemporary rigorists. He was martyred in 223.

On Saturday we remember Saint Teresa of Avila (+1582). Born in Avila in the north-west of Spain, she joined the Carmelite Order when she was eighteen. With the help of Saint John of the Cross, she reformed many Carmelite convents and founded new ones. She was a mystic, who reached the highest degree of spirituality. In 1970 Pope Saint Paul VI named her the first woman Doctor of the Church.
